Frédéric Malle's latest fragrance, "Heaven Can Wait," encapsulates a love story within a bottle.

Introduced by the renowned perfume house Editions de Parfums Frédéric Malle, Heaven Can Wait represents several years of dedication from perfumer Jean-Claude Ellena, involving meticulous drafting, editing, and eventual publication. Ellena initially envisioned crafting a fragrance with warm, spicy undertones.

True to its name, the fragrance proves to be worth the patience invested. It harmoniously blends warm and opulent elements such as clove, pimento, and vanilla with the delicate notes of powdery iris and soft musk. The result is what Ellena eloquently describes as a "romantic invitation" encapsulated in a bottle.

WAKUDA

the japanese experience

Japanese dining experiences in Las Vegas can vary widely, ranging from traditional sushi and sashimi to contemporary and innovative takes on Japanese cuisine. Las Vegas is known for its diverse culinary scene, and many restaurants offer high-quality Japanese dishes in different settings, from casual to fine dining.

WAKUDA, the latest venture from the 50 Eggs Hospitality Group, represents a captivating fusion of time and culture. Conceived by the esteemed two-Michelin-star chef Tetsuya Wakuda and 50 Eggs Hospitality CEO John Kunkel, this innovative concept intricately weaves together elements of traditional eastern mythology and alluring design.

WAKUDA artfully captures the dynamic interplay between classic and contemporary Japan, expressed through its cuisine, design, and artistic elements. The dining scenes in Singapore and Las Vegas are poised for a transformative experience with the much-anticipated introduction of WAKUDA.

My favorite : JAPANESE WAGYU 4oz

Highly desired and celebrated for its extraordinary marbling, tenderness, and rich flavor, Kagoshima's Wagyu stands as one of Japan's most coveted delicacies.

Ruinart is one of the oldest champagne houses, established in 1729, and it is known for producing high-quality, well-crafted Champagnes. Several factors contribute to Ruinart's reputation:

Heritage and Tradition: Ruinart has a long history and is deeply rooted in Champagne tradition. Being one of the oldest Champagne houses, it is often associated with a sense of history and heritage.

Quality of Grapes: The quality of grapes used in the production of Champagne is crucial. Ruinart is known for sourcing high-quality grapes from the Champagne region, which can contribute to the overall excellence of their wines.
